Santa Fe Jury Sides with Family Against Pecos Valley Jury Awards $73.21 Million

(Santa Fe, NM) – Yesterday, a Santa Fe jury has spoken. The New Mexico Medical Malpractice law firm of Buckingham Barrera and the Newell Law Firm secured a jury verdict of $73.21 million for a child and his mother who suffered injuries at the hands of Pecos Valley of New Mexico, LLC and Jerry McLaughlin, II, M.D. As a result of their negligence, the child will need care for the remainder of his life, and the jury made sure to take care of his needs.

“New Mexicans refuse to allow families to suffer without someone paying the consequences,” stated Kent Buckingham, partner at Buckingham Barrera and attorney for the family. “This verdict serves notice to those who believe negligent acts will not be punished.”

The family was overwhelmed with gratitude and thanked the jury. Additionally, they hope it will prevent other patients in the future from being injured. While the attorneys representing the family know there are many wonderful professionals in the medical field, they hope this verdict will be a deterrent to those who are indifferent to their patients.

“Today a Santa Fe Jury has spoken, and the healthcare industry must listen,” stated Rick Barrera, partner at Buckingham Barrera and attorney for the family. “A child who entered this world and faced tragedy now has an opportunity to live a better life.”
